THE GREAT PAN ANGLICAN CONGRESS

EXTENT OF THE ANGLICAN COMMUNION AND AREAS FROM WHICH THE 040 DELEGATIONS COME.

The Pan-Anglican Congress, now nearing its close in London, is one of the most interesting meetings of a denominational character in the world's history. Every corner of the globe is represented, and there are probably more lay than clerical delegates.

"The catholicity of the gatheriag," says the London Sphere, "is admirably fillustrated by the presence of American representatives, for there was a time when the American Church felt distinctly hurt. In 1782, when the clergy of Connecticut elected Samuel Seabury bishop, England would not conset the conset of the satted sixteen months in London, Finally he had to go to Aberdeen, where he was constant the upper room of a private house on November 17, 1784. The cases against Connie Dobbins and Clifford Elder were postponed in the Police Court yesterday morning at the request of Lawyer E. H. Wells, counsel for the defense. They are of peculiar interest inasmuch as they represent the first violation of the Byrd liquor law in Manchester. Dobbins conducts a saloon at Pourth and Hull Streets. Elder serves behind the bar. The infractions against the Byrd law are charged in a warrant sworn out against the defendants by Mrs. George Stein, of this city, who alleges that the accused dispensed liquor over their bar to her husband whom she designates as a "confirmed drunkard."

Lawyer Wells prayed a continuance in court proceedings until he could look up the law bearing on the cases. The trial was set for Thursday.
